K. OKUDA REFLECTS ON LOCAL NISEI'S APATHY

When Kenji Okuda, past president of the Oberlin College student body who is making a speaking tour under the Fellowship of Reconciliation, visited Rohwer last week, he expressed surprise at the local Nisei's apparent lack of response, either from backwardness or disinterestedness.

Comparing the reactions of young audience on the outside and in the Center, he elucidated that after a speech some members of any outside group of listeners would always approach him for a word or two, whereas the local audience headed in toto for the exit. He expressed his admiration for any young listener who would speak up and present his questions or opinions, irrational as they may be, accrediting him with active interest and courage to learn.

Okuda, who spoke at the Rohwer high school and Buddhist and Christian churches, left Wednesday for Oklahoma to continue his speaking tour.
